

ROCKAY'S HIGH-PERFORMANCE SOCKS

Remove Fishing Nets and Ocean Waste

Cleaning our oceans

We work closely with fishermen who gather old polluting fishing nets trapping our marine life and polluting our oceans. Then, we turn them into flakes; then those flakes into pellets. Those pellets are used to create the quality fabric we manufacture our 100% recycled, accelerate socks and compression sleeves with.

By purchasing our products, you help with removing hazardous nylon from the oceans and save sea creatures and birds from being caught in fishing nets. We collect fishing nets and other nylon waste left by humans, so that our recycling efforts result in high-end running apparel.

Odor - free Innovation

No one wants stinky feet. Each of our products is treated with trademark Polygiene Stay Fresh technology, which works as an antimicrobial to prevent the growth of odor-causing bacteria. You can simply take our socks or sleeves off after your run and just wait for them to dry before using them again. Convenience at its finest.

Our moisture-wicking fiber blend will keep sweat from building up against a runner's skin. If a runner applies lotion to their feet before slipping on our socks, it will result in skin that becomes neither too damp nor too dry.

Quality & Sustainability Combined

We don't believe in compromises. We believe that we can deliver a quality product without harming our environment to make it. Indeed, our purpose is to create the best running gear in the world while at the same time starting a movement within the sportswear industry promoting a healthier earth for all.

To that end, Rockay accelerate running socks are carefully designed in order to:

Increase blood flow

Reduce fatigue

Stabilize your legs

Wick away sweat

For Runners By Runners

Rockay was conceived for runners by runners. Our goal when we began was not just to create a product that's better than anything else out there, but also a product that's better looking than anything else out there.

All our products have a lifetime warranty.

We don't offer you empty promises; we only present you the facts.

All our products are treated with Polygiene anti-odor technology.

They're all tested by our team of athletes to ensure their quality.

Wear More Wash Less

Wear our products every session and only wash them when severely stained.

www.rockay.com

Given all this, we're confident that you'll find our products to be comfortable, durable, and reliable, mile after mile, race after race.

